BARGES TO NASHUA.

Gov. Foss of Massachusetts Advocates
Deepening Merrimack River.

New London, Conn., Sept. 6.—A plea for the development of inland waterways of the United States, especially in New England, was made last night by Governor Foss of Massachusetts in an address before the Atlantic Deep Waterways convention. Governor Foss advocated, as a future policy in the development of transportation facilities, that for every dollar spent for the extension of railroads in America a dollar of public money should be put into the extension and deepening of the waterways. "Rail and water systems," he said, "are natural co-partners in the development of any country. Each helps the other and it is only by their mutual service that true progress can be reached."

Mr. Foss favored the development of transportation on the Connecticut and Merrimack rivers. If the port of Hamburg, he said, could be developed seventy-six miles inland, there was no valid reason in his opinion why the Connecticut river could not be deepened to permit freight vessels proceeding as far as Springfield. He said also that he expected to see the Merrimack river dredged so that barges at least may proceed to Nashua, N. H.

The European cities of Antwerp, Hamburg, Glasgow and Manchester were cited by the speaker as ports that had been made famous by the development of the navigable rivers.

"Those interests which are opposed to the development of water commerce will lay emphasis upon the great cost of such construction, and the heavy nature of the barriers which have to be overcome," said Governor Foss. "But these arguments can be exploded in a moment when it becomes realized that all the great commercial countries of the world have had to overcome similar obstacles."

A Famous Woman Detective.

In the September Woman's Home Companion appears the following account of Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, the famous detective in New York City in connection with the police department:

"Here is a real Sherlock Holmes who has been instrumental in the capture of hundreds of crooks, without smoking a single pipe of tobacco. She is Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, police matron, recently promoted to detective of the first grade on the New York City force, with a salary of $2,250 a year, in recognition of her services in procuring the capture of the 'taxicab bandits,' whose reckless exploits had startled the city."

Mrs. Goodwin is a widow, forty-seven years old, the mother of three children, and her home life is as peacefully busy as that of any village housekeeper. Since the death of her husband, a roundsman on the police force, fifteen years ago, until her recent promotion, Mrs. Goodwin served as a police matron, incidentally exercising her gifts as a detective in quietly gathering evidence against hundreds of dangerous criminals and quacks.

"Her elder son is a detective of the first grade; her sister is a department-store detective, and her daughter, also, has already manifested ability in detective work. When the taxicab bandits, after robbing two book messengers of twenty-five thousand dollars, had seemingly ousted the police, Mrs. Goodwin was enlisted in the case. By impersonating the sister of the landlady of a boarding-house frequented by friends of the robbers, she was enabled gradually to pick up information that was invaluable to the authorities in running down the criminals. It was this case that won her promotion and official standing as a detective; yet through her fifteen years of service she had already won an enormous amount of even more valuable though less sensational work in obtaining evidence against over five hundred dangerous swindlers—astrologers, palmists, fortune-tellers, crystal-ballers, psychics, trance mediums, Hindu magicians, quack doctors and surgeons, and others that in the large cities prey upon foolish people, almost unnumbered because of the difficulty of proving that they actually violate the law."

WILSON MEETS ITALIANS.

Says He Has Been Grossly Misinterpreted
About Immigration.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 6.—Governor Woodrow Wilson received two delegations of Italians yesterday, one from Jersey City and the other from Brooklyn. He talked about immigration to them.

"There is no sort of visit more welcome to me now," said Governor Wilson, "because I fear that things I have written have been most grossly misinterpreted."

"The fact of the matter is that America has been enriched by having the aspirations of some of the finest races in the world brought to her shores. I rejoice heartily that they bring these aspirations because they add to the aspirations of the country and making the country greater and freer than it would be without them."

"For myself, I have never felt the slightest jealousy of the right kind of immigration, and by the right kind of immigration I mean the voluntary kind. When men of their own initiative come with a preliminary love for or desire for America to establish homes for themselves here and to identify themselves with the country, the result cannot be anything but good for the country itself."

The Orator at Baltimore Who Simply Couldn't Stop.

In the department called "The Interpreter's House," in the September American Magazine, appear a number of interesting stories of the Chicago and Baltimore conventions. Following is a story about one of the speakers at the Baltimore convention:

"Another defender of the principles of democracy was a young person from California, who by virtue of his many excellencies, is an officer of an organization known as the Order of Eagles. He was the happy possessor of a voice that could be heard for half-a-mile at sea. Because of the extraordinary loudness of his voice, this champion caught the attention of the crowd and held it while he was saying everything of any interest he had to say, which was not long. Unfortunately for him, having concluded his speech, he fell a victim to a common and fatal disease of convention orators. He couldn't stop. His oratorical legs got crossed and refused to carry him out of danger. No crowd is as quick or as merciless as a convention audience in detecting the approach of such a predicament and hastening it. A great wave of glee swept over the house. The orator seemed perfectly amazed at the sudden change in the temper of the convention. A second before they were applauding him. Now they were laughing at him. The sweat began to roll down his cheeks and melt his collar to a pulp. He raised his hands in prayer to the crowd. He implored them to be silent while he assured them of the glories of California and his own loyalty to the democracy. They only laughed the more. Eventually, finding that his voice was lost in the tumult, he inflated his cheeks and tried to shout out his speech, word by word, like the cork in a pop gun. This device almost broke up the convention in a delirium of happiness. In the end he retreated unheard. The picture of this miserable man will not soon pass from memory, as 'rising, falling, despairing,' he was swept from the stage. He took the platform a number of times afterward for those bad speakers are dauntless, but every time he appeared he was welcomed with such shrieks of glee that he never the chairman ever knew what were the vast thoughts he sought to deliver."

MONTPELIER ALDERMAN RESIGNS.

C. A. Lang to Take Place of W. H. Farrar, Removed from Ward 1.

At a special meeting of the Montpelier city council last evening, Alderman W. H. Farrar presented his resignation from the body, which was accepted and C. A. Lang, a former member of the council, was appointed to take his place. Mr. Farrar has removed from ward 1, which elected him, and as soon as election was over deemed it his duty to hand in his resignation. He has been very active in committee work and the council expressed its appreciation and its sorrow that his removal from the ward necessarily must sever his connection with the body. Mr. Lang, a former alderman from ward 1, will fill out the unexpired term.

There was some discussion as to whether the street department should be hired any tools or teams in the department when not in use by the department, but the motion was lost, when put to vote.

DUMPED INTO STREET.

Men and High-jumping Beef Dismayed
By a Runaway.

A runaway that caused considerable excitement and was the source of hilarity to some took place yesterday shortly before the whistles were to blow calling the workmen back to their labors. The scene was laid at the North End, between North Seminary street and Berlin street. A covered meat wagon, belonging to the Aja meat company of Berlin street, started out North Seminary street, laden with a party of granite cutters perched on the front seat. The animal drawing the load was progressing at only a moderate rate of speed down North Main street, but when Berlin street was reached the steed was uncontrollable. The runaway, then headed up Berlin street, was traveling at such fast a clip that the wagon was upset and the occupants of the beef vehicle were unseated.

Fortunately the riders escaped serious injuries. They were thrown heavily to the ground, one man receiving a bad cut on his arm. The wagon was said to have contained between 300 and 400 pounds of the high cost of living. This meat was strewn on the ground for a distance of many feet. Aid was soon on the scene and the horse was checked. The meat wagon was a total wreck. Part of it still lies near the scene of the accident, and other parts were carted to the meat headquarters.

W. J. Aldrich Guest of Honor at an Affair in St. Johnsbury.

St. Johnsbury, Sept. 6.—The rain which fell throughout the evening did not dampen the enthusiasm of the Progressives and members of other parties who gathered at the home of Dr. Walter J. Aldrich last night to extend congratulations over his election as representative in the next legislature.

Dr. Aldrich welcomed about 500 with a grateful speech which was frequently interrupted by Moose calls. The other speakers were Rev. Peter Black of the Methodist church, Rev. Dr. Grinn of the Episcopal church and Harland R. Howe, Democrat, candidate for governor in this year's election. The ministers congratulated the Progressives on their success.

Mr. Howe said the splendid compliment paid here in his own town will always remain the pleasantest memory of his life. Music was furnished.

The officers have been searching for him since Sunday night, when he is alleged to have held up two soldiers on the cross-roads between the fort and Essex Junction. Gletton, it is reported, fired at one of the men. The other he is said to have separated from $32. Only one of the men's names could be learned and that was given as Robert J. McGlerkins.

State Prison To-day.

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 6.—Bertram G. Spencer, condemned to be electrocuted during the week ending Sept. 15, for the murder of Miss Martha Blackstone, was removed from Hampton county jail to the state prison to-day.

His counsel, R. P. Stapleton of Holyoke, was in this city yesterday. On arriving here he went immediately to the jail where he had a long talk with the condemned man who is prepared to go to the chair without a whimper. He assured Spencer, however, that everything possible is being done to save him and Spencer is hoping that the interview with his mother and Mr. Stapleton had with the governor, concerning his case, will prove of some avail.

Mr. Stapleton told the governor that Spencer is a victim of local sentiment; that he is insane and irresponsible. It is understood here that no petition for clemency has been filed at the state house.

Mrs. Bertram G. Spencer of Worcester and Mrs. L. L. Spencer of Lebanon, Conn. wife and mother of Spencer, will pay the murderer of Miss Blackstone their last visit at Charlestown prison next week.

HEAVY COURT QUARTER.

More Cases Than Since the Last Year of License Regime.

Judge Scott of Barre city court has settled the accounts of the court for the quarter ending August 31, showing that in the number of cost bills, $7, it was the heaviest quarter since the last year of the license regime, which was in 1907. The local court paid into the state treasury the sum of $398, and drew out the sum of $861.56, to be disbursed in fees of the court.
